Chinese university of hong kong business school ranking

Unlike business trips to China, where travellers need to get the right type of visa before entering the country, business travelers to nearby Hong Kong have easier. Travellers to Hong Kong usually don't need a visa for regular or short trips, but business travellers may be. In particular, U.S. citizens do not require a visa to visit Hong Kong 90 days or less. However, if you are going to work, study, or set up a business, you need a visa. So, if your stop in Hong Kong is just a holiday, a stop, or a short non-business-related tour, you don't need a visa. However, if you plan to work or set up or meet a company, you need a visa. Hong Kong is one of the two special administrative territories (SARs) of the People's Republic of China, hence the Embassy and the Consulate of China is where business travelers apply for a Hong Kong visa. The other special administrative region is Macau. If you are considering going to Hong Kong and China, though, you need a visa for parts of China your trip. Refer to the overview of the process to apply for a Chinese visa for full details. Business travellers to Hong Kong must apply for a visa either at the Embassy or the Consulate in the area where they live or work. You can also have an authorized agent applying to you if you are unable to travel. No appointments are required. Applications sent are not allowed. Processing times for Hong Kong visa applications can vary, so be sure to leave a lot of time before your trip. In general, a good place to start is to make sure you have a valid U.S. passport with at least six months staying on it. Next, if you apply for a Hong Kong visa, you will want to visit their immigration department website. From there, you can download the visa form and fill it in. Like other visa applications, you also need a picture of a standard passport type, and you may need support business materials. The visa fee is $30, and the contact fee is $20. Fees are subject to change without warning, so check the official website for the latest fee schedule. Fees can be paid by credit card, order money, cashier's cheque, or company check. Cash and personal cheques are not accepted. Payment must be made to the Chinese Embassy. Visa application must be submitted in person. Applications sent are not accepted. When you have all the materials, you need to send it to the nearest Chinese Consulate to be processed. If you can't make it to the Chinese Consulate personally, you can hire an authorized agent to do it for you. You can also ask a travel agent for assistance. Thanks for telling us! Once in Hong Kong, you option to apply for your Chinese visa. Apply at the Chinese Visa Office or apply at a good visa agency. China Visa Office - very cheap but slow, lots of paperwork and plenty of queues. Their details are Level 7, Lower Block, China Resource Building No.26, Jalan Port, Wanchai, Hong Hong SAR Tel: 852-34132424 (available at 10:00-11:00 am, 3:00-4:00pm on weekdays) Website: Opening hours: 9am-12pm then 2-5pm Monday to Friday Good Visa Agency - A little pricy but you can get your visa in one day, no paperwork and no queues. This is my good detail using Room 916-917 Tower B New Mandarin Plaza 14 Museum of Road Science Tsim Sha Tsui, Hong Kong Tel: 852-2369 3188 Website: Opening hours: 8:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. Monday to Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Saturday citizens of the United States, USA, USA, Australia, New Zealand, Ireland, Canada, and the European Union could enter Hong Kong without a visa. All you need is your passport. (When you enter Hong Kong, you'll get a stamp or sticker saying you can enter without a visa. Keep this because you need it to get a Chinese visa.) If you know very well in advance that you want to go to China in combination with your trip to Hong Kong, you can get a visa to enter China at the Chinese embassy in your home country well in advance. But if you are kind of spontaneous and decided you want to make a visit to China while you are in Hong Kong or the Chinese embassy in your home country it is difficult for you to visit, you can get a visa to enter China in Hong Kong. An easy way to avoid getting a visa to enter China is to do so while in transit to a third country, with China being a stop lasting only briefly. You can spend up to 72 hours in China without a visa if you are in transit from one country to another by stopping at China's main airport. You must have your airplane, train, or board ticket documentation for continuation of your journey which is for a date within 72 hours. If you transit through the Shanghai-Jiangsu-Zhejiang region or the Beijing-Tianjin-Hebei region, you can stay up to 144 hours without a visa and move between the three cities in the region at that time. Like a 72-hour free transit visa, you must have a transport ticket indicating that you will leave China within 144 hours. The best and easiest way to get a Chinese visa in Hong Kong is through a visa agency. You will find many visa agencies in Hong Kong, but the most recommended are The Chinese Travel Service (CTS) and Forever Bright. To get a Chinese tourist visa in Hong Kong, you need some documents. If you don't have all these documents, you'll have difficulty getting a visa. A itinerary that includes your round-trip tickets to and from ChinaArrival and the departure date and places you intend to all your hotel reservations for the duration of your stay in ChinaA photocopy of your first home passport, which includes photos and your information photocopy of the arrival stamps or stickers you receive when entering the Hong KongA visa application form (this is available and filled in the visa agency) China visa price in Hong Kong is dependent on the both your nationality and how long you need a visa. It usually takes about four working days to get a visa, and if you need it early, you will need to pay extra. Prices change for visas regularly so you need to contact the agency you intend to use in advance to ensure current costs. Standard Price for China Visa in Hong Kong Dollar This price is through China Visa General Agency, as of April 2019: Single Entry Visa: HK$760 ($96.89)Double Entry Visa: HK$970 ($123.66) Multiple Entry (6 months): HK$1,170 ($149.16)Multiple (12 and 36 months): HK$1,530 Visa Price ($195.06) for U.S. Citizens Single Entry Visa HK$1,100 ($140.14) Visa Price for the U.K. Citizens Single Entry Visa HK $940 ($119.77) Thank you for telling us! HONG KONG -- Markets in Hong Kong and Japan fell on Monday over fears of a growing U.S. recession, but China and India, the less mature emerging markets giant, continued to pose a downward trend by delivering modest gains. Hang Seng recovered half its morning losses ahead of the close, but fell 340 points, or 1.2%, to 27,179, while China's Shanghai Composite Index was up 31 points, or 0.6%, to 5393. The total on the Shanghai Composite Index was 161.4 billion yuan, or $22.2 billion, which is about 2.5% shy of levels in October 2006, when the market reached a record high, while Bombay Sensitive Index racked up 108 points, or 0.5%, and hit an all-time high of 20,000 Indian shares led higher by ICICI Bank (IBN) - Getty Reports, which jumped 4.7%, to 1,285 rupees, after investors sought a bargain in an early-day swim. In Taiwan, Taiex fell 338 points, or 4%, to 7883, as traders said they loaded heavy positions in electronic stocks such as Precision Hon Hai (HNHPF) and Taiwan Semiconductor Manufacturing (TSM) - Get Reports, anticipating weaker orders, Accuracy Hon Hai fell 6.3%, to T$171.50, while Taiwan Semiconductor Manufacturing plunged 7%, to T$55.80. South Korea's Kospi fell in line with other Asian markets, down 1.8%, to 1831. Hong Kong is more likely to benefit from China, and is more likely to be hurt from the United States now, said Richard Lee, an analyst at Hong Kong's Core Pacific Yamaichi. In China, you are dealing with different groups of investors who are more concerned with China itself, and who think the economy can benefit from the Olympics. Hong Kong's biggest losers were commodity stocks, as the price of gold fell to $862.10 an ounce vs. $863.20 on Friday, and crude oil, which lost 0.6%, to $97.33, by the end of Asian trading. PetroChina (PTR) - Get Reports dropped 2.3%, to HK$13.86, while shares in Shanghai Sinopec (SHL) was down 3.4%, to HK$11.26, after shrinking huge profits last week. Gold miners Zijin Mining (ZIJMF) and Sino Gold (SIOGF) fell 3%, to HK$13.04, and 3.6%, to HK$50.95, respectively. Financial stocks were also faring badly at concerns over the global impact of U.S. employment data Friday. Hang Seng Bank (HSNGY) fell 1.9%, to HK$155.70, while HSBC Holdings (HBC) declined 1.8%, to 2-year lows of HK$127.80, and China Life Insurance (LFC) - Get Report slipped 2.7%, to HK$38.60. Property stocks recovered in an afternoon session on rumours that the U.S. Federal Reserve could cut interest rates by 50 basis points by the end of January. The Swire Pacific Conglomerate (SWRAY) jumped 3.6%, to HK$111.8, while Cheung Kong (CHEUY) was up 1.9%, to HK$147, and Hang Lung Properties (HLPPY) nailed back from a loss to close 1% lower, at HK$34.15. Chinese-related stocks are also cancelled from today's selloff. Rail operator MTR Corp (MTRJY) jumped 9.1%, to HK$34.90, as Chinese railroad company pushed higher by China Railway, which was up 2.1%, to HK$11.60, and was the most actively traded stock today. China Railway rose on reports that the company won 22 billion yuan, or $3 billion, in an undisclosed contract on the mainland. Domestic capitals are sitting on the sidelines, as well as foreign capitals, which are still awaiting stabilization of the US subprime, said Jackson Wong, investment manager at Tanrich Securities in Hong Kong. Chinese consumer stocks and Hong Kong property stocks would be better off performing than Hang Seng as a whole, until volumes rise. The volume in Hang Seng is HK$113.5 billion, or $14.6 billion vs. HK$99.8 billion, or $12.8 billion on Friday. But Wong said that sums should reach HK$150 billion ($19.2 billion) a day before they can be considered aggressive and large purchases enter the market. Core Pacific Yamaichi's Lee says that Hang Seng will continue to trade between the 25,000-point band and 28,000 points for now. In China, stocks are widely acquired, except for banking stocks, which fell on profit takings, and Air China (AIRYY) and China Eastern Airlines (CEA) - Get Report, which was down 1%, at 28.89 yuan, and flat, at 20.63 yuan, after reports surrounded that shareholders in China Eastern would reject the sale of the $920 million Airline shares to Singapore If the deal is rejected, Air China will make a counter-bid, the company announced yesterday. In Japan, the Nikkei hit a fresh 17-month low for the second straight session, ending 190 points, or 1.3% lower, at 14,500. Share prices shaken most of all large indexes in Asia by Friday's selloff on Wall Street, and by a strong yen. The yen gained 0.5% against the dollar in Asian trading, to 109.44, but remained weaker than the 110 benchmarks. Nintendo (NTDOY) led the sale, shedding 5.7%, to 59,900 yen, despite a report by Japanese game magazine Enterbrain that the Wii overcame Sony's Playstation 3 by more than 3-to-1 in Japan over the holiday season. The magazine said that the Wii sold 774,123 units compared to the Playstation. Shares in Sony (SNE) Get Report increased 0.7%, to 5,830 on bargain hunting, however. Among other drivers, Kobe Steel (KBSTY) lost 0.3%, to 346 yen, while Honda (HMC) - Get Report, gelongsor 0.8%, to 3570 yen, yen, Canon (CHARGES) - Get a Report followed by Sony ahead, up 0.2%, to 4950 yen. Weekly Nikkei reported this weekend that japan's share of GDP fell 4%, to $4.4 trillion, and that the country's share of growth economically globally is now at a 24-year low. In contrast to the rest of the world, it also predicted fears of deflation in 2008. Daniel M. Harrison is a business journalist who specializes in European and emerging markets, in particular Asia.
